POLITICAL NOTES.

—The shad-fishing season will close on the 15th.

—The President goes this week to Long Branch.

—The exposure of America's weakness at Vienna is laid open at last.

—The public debt statement for June 1st shows a reduction of $2, 585,282.

—Meadville is receiving orders from Kentucky for the mowing machines in that city.

—The Chicago Railroad Convention have concluded to "pass" on the dead head question

—A payer in Peru, Ill., has a "devil's column," so that when L to pay the people will know where to go.

—To compensate for long suffering, the survivors or the Polaris expedition have come home in a Frolic.

—Russia is about to institute civil marriage; but that won't prevent the parties from uncivil couldn't afterwards.

—Lancaster is to have a new hotel, which will cost $75,000 to erect. The plan is said to be very handsome.

—Gov. Hartranft visited the grave of Gov. Geary, on Decoration day, and placed a magnificent boquet thereon.

—It is stated that Senator Cameron is after the official head of Mr. Comly. Collector of the Port of Philadelphia, —Col. Thomas Scott has been made a defendant in the Credit Mobilier bill in equity, in Hartford, Conn., with others.

—That Italy is not recognized as a leading power among nations is from no lack of her organs supported by the world.

—The report that the captured Modocs have engaged to put whoops on barrels of army stores has been contradicted.

—A Methodist church in Iowa claims to be bannerhouse of worship, because it has the Stars and Stripes painted on its steeple.

—Parricides are likely to become popular; but when an Irish boy kills his father, it will more properly be called a Pat-ricide.

—The editor of a Greensburg paper returns thanks to a subscriber for a number of specimens of living rattlesnakes. What next?

—The Democratic State Committee met in Philadelphia on Wednesday, and arranged for holding the State Convention in Wilkesbarre, on August 27th.

—The Connecticut capital question goes to the people for decision. This is wise. The people who vote for two State capitals must be in favor of capital punishment.

—Parson Brownlow has no idea of dying yet. In a late letter he promises to un-reconstructed Confederates that as soon as his term in the U. S. Senate expires, he will recieve the Knoxville Whig, in which he will give them "a bit of his mind." The old Parson will never say die.

—Gen. John A. McClernand, who thinks it was he, and not Grant, who captured Vicksburg, was defeated for re-election as Circuit Judge of the Springfield district, at the election last Monday. He is said to be very much astonished at the result, never once dreaming that the people could possibly defeat him.

—The Republicans of Blair county, held their county convention last week, and in their resolutions strongly rebuked the Congressional and Constitutional Convention grabs. It looks now as if the people might be roused to a proper antagonism to official peculation. In all the Conventions held this summer, the masses should put themselves squarely on the record against official theives.

—Lieut. Fred. Grant has been ordered for duty with the Yellow Stone Expedition. This news ought to assuage the Democratic organs which howled so piteously over the supposed fact that the Lieutenant had superceded an officer of higher rank on Sheridan's staff. Those Grant children are terrible pests to the Democracy. If Fred puts his foot a little too far forward, or Nellie gives her curls an extra toss, it throws half the Democratic scribes in the country into convulsions.

PERHAPS France since the resignation of M. Thiers will appreciate the great service he rendered her in her hour of great peril. If Marshal M'Mahon is as successful in the management of the affairs of the French Republic as M. Thiers has been, he will retrieve some of the blunders into which he fell at the beginning of the Franco-Prussian war.

POSTAL CARDS.—Persons should not mail two postal cards joined together—one containing an inquiry and the other blank upon which to make a reply. Both will be canceled at the office of mailing, and the blank one rendered useless for futher use.

These cards are not to be advertised, are not to be returned to the writers, nor sent to the dead-letter office. If undeliverable, sixty days after their receipt they should be burned.

No postal card which contains a scurrilous or obscene communication, or which is folded and the edges fastened together, or to which a slip of paper is attached to conceal the communication, or to which any printed matter, photograph, or picture is affixed, will be allowed transmission through the mail; nor can two cards be pasted together and transmitted without prepayment of postage, (in addition to the stamps imprinted thereon,) at full letter rates. All such cards will be destroyed at the mailing post office. It will therefore, be well for the public to understand that, while anything not scurrilous or obscene can be properly transmitted, if written or printed on the card itself, no addition to it, or alteration of it, or increase in its weight will be permitted.

DEMOCRATIC PATRIOTISM.

The democratic press are pretty nearly united in aiding the cause of riot, revolution and negro extermination in Louisiana. It has not done this service to crime and rebellion by openly praising the act of treason and assassination, inaugurated to overthrow the present state government, but by the more sinister and less manly course of distorting facts, and endevoring to saddle the blame upon the innocent, peaceful and suffering parties. They are warmed into serpentine activity and seek to wind their cold clammy coils around the public mind and poison it with their vile venom of falsehood and misrepresentation. To make virtue out of murder, arson and rebellion, and usurpation out of vindication of the supremacy of the government and the establishment of peace and order.

What patriotism or honesty of purpose can be expected of a party of such principles. A party that links its sympathies with all manner of crime and rebellion against the government. A party capable of but one thing, opposition—blind, egotistic opposition—deforming the most ordinary accident into a henious crime and raising their crocodile lamentations over evidences of corruption in which they themselves do not believe. Are the democratic readers—the majority of whom are patriotic men at heart so subordinate to the party press as to be blind to this rebellious sentiment, and be led like asses whither they would not go?

OBITUARY.

Mrs Catharine Miles Green, wife of Joseph Green, in Millesburg, June 4, at eleven o'clock, aged 57 years, 11 months and 12 days.

Those who know the inestimable value to any community of a lady of broad culture and refinement, a generous unselfish friend, a model daughter, wife and mother, a sincere and humble christian, can sympathize with us in the loss we have sustained in the death of this most estimable lady. All her life-time she spent in this county, and for forty-five years was a aithful member of the Baptist church. As in her life so in her last days of unprecedented suffering and in the hour of death, her faith in the Redeemer never faltered; her love for Him and the dear ones she longed to bring to Him was beautiful and impressive. In a word, she had lived "the life hid in Christ in God," and she fell asleep in Jesus. She will never be forgotten by those whose privilege it was to attend the last hallowed scene. May the Almighty wisdom which has ordered it, bless the memory of her lovely character to the comfort as well as the good of the bereaved ones, so that their "last end may be like hers."

STRIKES IN ENGLAND WITH THE COAL MINERS.

The difficulties of the English iron masters, have no sooner assumed a more favorable aspect than they are plunged into new troubles with the iron miners. The Cleveland district—the most flourishing and important in England, is paralyzed by this sudden strike of the miners. The strikers are about eight thousand and although no increase of wages are demanded the combnation of the miners to restrict the out-put of ore to about the usual quantity is regarded by the employers as a means to be used to enforce an increase when the men get the upper hand, which they soon would do. The employers having no stock of ore on hand there would soon be not enough ore to make it worth while to run the furnaces. Unde the circumstances the employers determined not to accede to the demands the miners and are preparing to damp down their furnaces. The limestone quarry men are out on a strike, the engineers of the Staffordshire potteries have struck. The Lancaster carters and the bootmakers of London are still on a strike, and another great building strike appears to be imminent.

CAPT. JACK SURRENDERED.

APPLEGATE'S MANSION, CLEAR LAKE, CAL. June 1—Afternoon.—This morning, the troops at the camp in Langell's Valley were divided into several parties and sent out on scouts after the fleeing Modocs. Just as the scouting parties left, the Modoc captives, with the exception of Bogus Charley. Hooka Jim, Steamboat Frank and Schacknasty Jim, were sent to the ranch in charge of Lieutenant Taylor, of the Fourth Artillery and a small detachment of men.

3 P. M.—A series of prolonged yells and cheers aroused the camp from a pleasant siesta half an hour after the departure of my last counrier. Gen. Davis. Gen. Wheaton and other officers and all the men rushed from the house and tents to find the cause of the uproar, and at once the whole camp was in commotion. Down the level plain north of the house was a grand cavalcade of mounted horsemen. The steeds rushed forward at once at a furious rate, and soon neared the groups of spectators scattering about the premises. Capt. Jack is captured, shouted a sturdy sergeant. Again the valley echoed with cheers and yells. The mounted command was that of Perry. He had returned from a scout of thriteen hours. Three miles above the mouth of Willow creek, at half-past ten o'clock this morning, the Warm Spring Indian scouts struck a hot trail, and after a brief search the Modocs were discovered. Colonel Perry surrounded the Indian retreat. His men were bound to fight. Suddenly a Modoc shot out from the rocks with a white flag. He met a Warm Spring and said Jack wanted to surrender. Three scouts were sent to meet Jack. He came out cautiously, glared about him a moment, and then as giving up all hopes, came forward and held out his hand to his visitors. Then two of his warriors, fire squaws, and seven children darted forth and joined in the surrender.

The command that made this famous scout was the first squadron of the First Cavalry, Col. D. Perry, composed of Troop F. Lieutenant Miller, and Troop H. Major Trumbul and the medical officer, Assistand Surgeon Dewitt. The guides were C. Pullman and H. A. Applegate. Jack is about forty. He is five feet eight inches, compactly built. He has a large and well formed face, full of individuality. Although dressed in old clothes he looks every inch a chief. He does not speak to any one. The Modocs are grouped in the field near the house surrounded by a guard. The spectators peer in Jack's face with eager interest, but he heeds them not. He is still as a statue.

LETTER FROM WASHINGTON.

[Correspondence of the REPUBLICAN.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., JUNE 7, 1873.

—The trouble concerning the postal cards is not ended. The department has been making an attempt to have the quality of the paper improved, and to that end sent a special agent to the works of the Morgan Envelope Company at Springfield, where they are made, with instructions to see that none were printed on inferior paper. For some reason that company has stopped work on the cards entirely, and for upwards of a week not a card has been printed. The contract with this company was for 25,000,000 cards, but scarcely a third of that number have been furnished. The price paid by the government will not cover the expense of furnishing them and the company is losing money, but no blame can be attached to the Post Office Department, as the sample of the card and the quality of the paper were difinitely settled before the contract was made, and there could not possibly be any misunderstanding as to its terms.

It is not known whether this company will attempt to go on and fill the contract or whether they will give it up. Cases are occurring every day in which parties make contracts with the government for services, material, etc., at ruinously low prices, and when they find they have burnt their fingers they throw the blame on the government. To some men there is a charm in having it to say they are government contractors. The Morgan Envelope Company seems to have been determined to obtain a contract at all hazards, and now both itself and the government are suffering because of their folly in bidding so low.

—Postmaster General Cresswell has concluded to not rescind the contract with the White Star Line for the carrying of the European mails. The officers of that line were required to show cause why the contract with them should not be abrogated and they appeared the day before yesterday by their attorney, Hon. Edwards Pierrepont. The contract calls for six steamers making regular weekly trips. A clause is inserted whereby the company forfiets $5,000 for each failure to take out the mails at the required time. Between the date of the contract—Oct. 1, 1872,—and the 17bt of May there had been five failures. By the terms of the contract the Postmaster General is empowered to cancel the agreement at any time after the failure of the company to perform their part. Since the loss of the Atlantic this company has been in a somewhat crippled condition and really unable to carry the mails as frequently as is required. Their steamers are the fastest vessels afloat, but they have not enough of them. It is proposed, however, to put in for the present two of their steamers now in South America. Two new steamers are being built for this line, the Germanic and Brittanic, and it is claimed that they will be faster than any vessel ever before launched.

The Inman Line and the North German Lloyd are competitors for this service in case it should be taken from the White Star. But Mr. Cresswell has decided to let the contract stand for the present. It expires by limitation on the 31st of next December. All other contracts for the European mail service expire at the same time; and Mr. Cresswell is anxious to so arrange the mails after that time that there will be four mails sent out from New York each week on four different days of the week.

—The steamer Frolic, the vessel that was despatched by the Secretary of the Navy to convey that portion of the crew of the Polaris who were rescued from the ice float on the 30th of April, arrived off the Navy Yard the evening before last with her charge on board. The survivors, nineteen in number, were interviewed yesterday by Secretary Robeson, Commander Reynolds, Professors Henry and Baird, of the Smithsonian Institute, and Captain Brown, of the United States Signal Service, but no other persons are permitted to communicate with them. The investigation had not, up to yesterday afternoon, progressed farther than the direct and cross-examination of Mr. Frederick Meyer, meteorologist, and John Herne, Steward. The other survivors are Captain H. C. Tyson, assistant navigator; W. G. Kruger, Fred. Jamka, William Nindemann, Fred. Antinig, G. F. Linguist and Peter Johnson, seamen: William Jackson, cook; Equimaux, Joe, interpreter; Hannah and child, Esquimaux; Hans Christian, wife and four children.

Mr. Robeson is not at all satisfied with the statements published in the papers, and proposes to get at the facts concerning the condition of the expedition by means of a thorough investigation. Each one of the survivors will be examined separately, their evidence taken down in writing and when completed turned over to Professors Henry and Baird, who will make an early report upon the same.

It was amusing to witness the efforts of the representatives of the various daily newspapers to obtain some information from these survivors. Secretary Robeson had, previous to their arrival, ordered that a strict guard be kept over the vessel and all approaches to her, in order that no one might question these persons. Men belonging to the crew of the Frolic had to come on shore, but no sooner were they on terra firma than they were beset with eager questions as to what they had learned from the Polaris folks. It was evident that they too had their orders and that they knew how to obey them, for to every question the answer was, "I don't know anything about it."

—The report of the National Commissioner of Education will be distributed during the present month. It is a volume of about one thousand pages, and is a compendium of the educational progress of each State during the past year.

The Commissioner in his statement discusses at considerable length the leading educational questions of the day. The appendix contains several valuable papers upon special subjects by some of our leading thinkers and writers. Perhaps the article that will be of most interest to the general reader is that entitled "The Value of Common School Education to Common Labor," by Dr. Edward Jarvis, of New England. He treats of education as affecting the Wood-sawyer, the coal-beaver the grindstone-turner, the mechanic, etc.

Congress placed but five thousand copies of the Educational Report under the control of the Commissioner for distribution, and he informs me that this number is already nearly, if not entirely, promised. The entire edition will amount to twenty thousand copies, which, with the exception of the Commissioner's five thousand copies, will be distributed by Senators and Representatives on application to them.

The artificial culture of fish in the waters of the Potomac has succeeded so well that the experiment is to be tried in the Western rivers. A few years ago the Potomac was stocked with bass brought from some of the rivers west of the Allegheny Mountains, and now it is literally crowded with them. A few days since the commissioner from the State of Michigan came on here to get a quantity of shad roes with which to stock some of the rivers of that State. He was furnished with fifty thousand, which he has taken to Detroit. The same number has also been sent to West Virginia to be distributed in the Kanawha and Greenbrier rivers. The hatching has been quite successful and in a short time there will be a supply sufficient for the entire West

—According to the dispatches received yesterday from Vienna the American department of the great exposition is getting in shape. It is said "the novelties surpass those from any other country." Steam was applied to the machinery and everything bids fair for a successful exhibition of American enterprise.—When Mr. Schultz, the successor of General Van Buren, took charge of our affairs he found everything in utter confusion. Exhibitors were disheartened, and it seemed that the United States was doomed to disgrace. By his energy and perseverance he has brought order out of chaos, and the Department of State now has faith to believe that our people will acquit themselves with credit to themselves and their country.

Mr. A. D. White, president of Cornell University, has been tendered and has accepted the chairmanship of the Bureau of Education at the exposition, and ex-Governor E. D. Morgan, of New York, has been appointed chairman of the Bureau of Commerce. These are both important positions, and these gentlemen will fill them with honor.

STATE NEWS.

—Matilda furnace, in Huntingdon county, has blown out for repairs.

—The State Medical Society meets in Carlisle to-day.

—The epizooty has made its appearance in Juniata township, Huntingdon county.

—The cutworm is doing much damage to the corn in parts of Dauphin county.

—In 1751, Reading contained 130 dwellings houses, 106 families and 398 inhabitants.

—A redbreast has been guilty of robin a Reading lady of laces with which to build its nest.

—New Methodist Episcopal churches are in construction at Birmingham and Warriorsmark, Huntingdon county.

—Colonel J. T. Henry of Titusville, the founder of the Courier, of that city is about to publish a history of petroleum.

—Harrisburg barbers are fined seven dollars and a half each for keeping their shops open on Sunday. Moral Harrisburg.

—The chilvelry of the South are not to have all the "tournaments" to themselves. One is to be held at Gettysburg on the 4th of July.

—The annual Convention of the Catholic Benevolent Union of Pennsylvania will be held at Pottsville, on Wednesday, August 7.

—It is against Altoona's law for liverymen to hire teams to pleasure parties on the Sabbath. That law should be put in force in Bellefonte.

—A little daughter of Daniel Unger of Middlespring, Cumberland county, died on Monday, after a few hours' illness, caused by eating colored candy.

—During the trial of a case at Ebensburg on Monday, the defendent called a witness a liar. Judge Dean kindly permitted the talkative gentleman to choose between a fine of ten dollars for contempt, or a sojourn in the county jail.

—It is stated that a man in Mahanoy City, Schuylkill county, lately ate three hundred oysters at one sitting and offered to bet that he could stow away fifty more on top of them. What a terror that fellow would be to boarding-house keepers

—The Altoona police force has been quadrupled—consists of four men now. So much for the power of the press. After the vote on local option Altoona, believing like some Bellefonters that the millennium had, in a large degree, arrived, narrowed down to one policeman. The people are again clamoring for another increase.

—The Gettysburg Battle-field Memorial Association is progressing actively with its memorial and indication effort. The Governors of Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts, Vermont, Ohio Illinois, and other States, recommended appropriations by their Legislatures, and preparation is making to erect indictations on the field.

—It is stated that the damage done the Columbia dam by the ice freshet has been productive of much good to the interest of fisherman consumers above that point. Before the breach the dam interposed an unsusmountable barrier to the passage of fish up the stream, but scince schools of shad numbering by the thousands have passed this point on their way to the headwaters of the Susquehanna.

—A boy named Henry Moon had a quarrel with a man named Isaac Riggle, at a mill in Williamsport, on Monday, of last week and the latter struck the former in the face, causing the blood to flow. Moon brooded over his injuries until evening, and when Riggle was leaving for home struck him on the head with a club, fracturing his skull and causing his death in about three hours. The murderer had not been arrested at last advice.

—A little child of John Carroll of West Chester, was left alone in a room for a few moments on Tuesday, and in playing got hold of some mathes, with which it set its clothes on fire. Its screams brought, the mother who made every effort to extinguish the flames, and in doing so was badly burned about the hands and arms. Some parts of the child's body were burnt to a crisp and it survived but two hours.

——Maynerd, the special itinerant apostle of the Williamsport Register gave us a call on last Wednesday. Like the majority of Editors he is a good fellow and his clothes fit him.

——John H. Frank, near Millheim, on the 27th of May clipped from two common sheep 16¼ pounds of wool. If any farmer in the county can beat this we will be pleased to hear from him.

A WINTER WEDDING

(AT CHISELHURST CHURCH, JAN. 9 1873.)

By the Author of "John Halifax, gentleman."

It fled away in a clang of bells,
Marriage bells,
On the wings of the blast that sinks and swells,
That bold, weak, fate-struck, suffering soul,
Whom Christ wash clean, and God made whole!
And we stand in the light of two happy faces,
Two happy hearts whom our heart embraces;
And we hear the peaceful organ's sound,
And the angry storm sweeps harmless round;
Blessed is the bridegroom though the heavens are dun;
Blessed is the bride whom no sun shines on.

Mayhap, some wandering angels say,
Stop and say,
As through the gloom they carry away,
That bodiless spirit to Him who knows—
He only—whither the spirit goes;
"God gives them all that dead man lacked
(As men dare judge him) in thought, word, act;
Deny them all that to him was given,
Lest earth's doors open, shut doors of heaven."
Blessed is the bridegroom without crown or land;
Blessed is the bride with the ring on her hand.

Peal ye joy-bells, peal through the rain,
Blinding rain:
God makes happiness, God makes pain
Summer and Winter a good tree grows,
A strong soul strengthens through weal and woes.
"Be not afraid" said the wild sobbing wind;
"Weep" sighed the clouds "but the blue is behind."
Blessed is the bridegroom under crown or sun
Blessed is the bride whom Love's light shines on.

Our Story Teller.

THE COMPLIMENTS OF THE SEASON.

By the Author of "RUTH BAYNARD'S STORY."

CHAPTER III.

CONCLUDED.

And then the loveliest woman in the world, as many might have called her, burst out laughing; and it seemed as if silver bells and musical glasses were having a duet together of the nature of A happy Christmas to you, and three times three cheers, and one cheer more.

"Is the door locked?" said Lady Clavering.

And then she wiped her eyes, and taking the stranger's hand, she kissed a cetrain finger, which wore a certain ring.

"Oh, you remember! I take that as very kind of you; but I should like to hear you say a word of praise or encouragement, if you can't say a word of love. I have twenty thousand pounds, and many people think me pretty"—this was said with such ridiculous business-like gravity, that Lady Clavering, in spite of fear or nervousness, laughed so heartily as to alarm herself; on which the wonderful stranger, having walked to the toilet and back, presented to her a dose of sal-volatile, which her ladyship drank immediately, giving to the beautiful lips the occasion required to finish the sentence demurely with the words,—"having a decided gift for the useful in the necessitous circumstances, you see."

But here Mrs. Beaumont interfered. "I think we must not waste time. Melanie, my maid, will be here directly, Julia. She and the man were left with the luggage. Everybody could not come in the carriage, and Melanie knows everything. Do order a chair-bed to put into this dressing-room; I suppose I am to have it as usual. She"—pointing to the stranger—"can sleep there. And now what is the programme? How and when and where are we to tell Lord Clavering? Whatwill he think of her? What is she to say?"

"He can only think one thing," said the stranger; "and as to what I am to say, I shall say that I have done it for his good; and it is all for his good I have done it. But we had better know what is going forward. Is there anything to happen tonight?"

This beautiful girl while saying this was looking at Lady Clavering with eyes full of interest, and her pretty mouth had such a clear, courageous way of uttering her business-like assertions and inquiries that even that surprised lady found it difficult to refuse belief in the young beauty's power. But before she could answer, Mrs. Beaumont's maid Melania walked in.

"Oh, you are come!" was generally exclaimed. Then from Mrs. Beaumont came a rush of words to her daughter.

"Julia, tell us quickly what has been settled as to these Christmas festivities. As you said just now, I have done it; and now it must be carried through. Lord Clavering must see her soon. When? How? Where? We have not long to decide in."

"Let chance decide," said the stranger.

"No, no, madame," whispered Melania.

"Well" said Lady Clavering, "today we have the west wing, where the bachelors' rooms are, almost filled. A dinner party of about twenty, and more than a dozen sleep in the house."

"I shall not dine with you," said the stranger.

"And then," went on Lady Clavering, with a smile and a sigh, "tomorrow is the usual great hunting meet at Claydown Cross, and at twelve o'clock the poorer tenantry come for their gifts, money and meat as usual. You, mother, were to help me in the entertainment of them. The women come into the great hall; the men, if any are here and not at the meet, have a glass of beer outside the door. There is a great seeing of the gardens and a three o'clock tea for the women in the long conservatory which joins to the orchard house. By the time everybody is come home and gone home the decoration of the great rooms will be finished and the dinner will be ready. The day after tomorrow being Christmas day, we have our home ball. This afternoon is generally taken up with the children's entertainment in the village schoolrooms.

The teachers come to our ball. Everybody dances. It is necessarily late because the duties and work make it so. But somehow everybody is ready and the eatables laid out, and the dear old respectables from the village get in as supernumeraries to help the servants and look on at the fun by nine o'clock, and then dancing, singing, a children's play —'The Babes in the Wood' it is to be this year—actually last till, at the earliest, two o'clock in the morning."

"I shall appear at that," said the stranger decidedly."

"And then," continued Lady Clavering, "the next day we rest; and the day after, the twenty-seventh, all our neighbors, having kept Christmas day and had their rest at home, come to our great ball. We fill the house with distant friends. It is the business of the day to receive them. We dine at eight—as many as can collect. The dancers come about half-past nine and we have generally had a few tableaux first of all; but I don't know how we shall manage that this year. I am provided with two. The Shoats and the Greysons gave me a rehearsal of them; and they are very good—'Lady Ashton,' and a scene with 'Mary Queen of Scots' in it, where Mary Greyson looks splendid,—but two are not enough, I am afraid." And Lady Clavering stopped with a helpless look on her face.

But her mother was all attention.

"Three would be enough," looking at the lovely stranger with a glance of inquiry.

"Yes," murmured a sweet voice which told of a considering mind, "yes; Maclise's picture, the Marriage of Strongbow—we did it once—and then—"

"A master stroke, if you can do it,' said Mrs. Beaumont eagerly.

"When does the post go out?" asked the stranger. "Lady Clavering," we must have Lord Clavering's son here."

"What?"

"We must have—I must have—Lord Daynham here. I can write. Melania can go to the post, Of course you know the way."

"Oh yes, madame!"

"It will reach him in time?"

"If you telegraph to him in these words from me—the compliments of the season—he will come," said Lady Clavering. "But—"

She ceased speaking. It was quite evident the beautiful lady was to have her own way. She was already giving Melania the money, and saying she was glad the night looked so bright, and "What a blessing a full moon is sometimes."

"I could not; it would not be right now for me to interfere," began Lady Clavering again; "my mother has brought you—"

"Yes, I am here, and facts are stubborn things. Kiss me once more, dear Lady Clavering. All will go well. You have been good—you are so good; but I must rule now. Sometimes it is safe to be over-ruled, I assure you."

"It is terrifying, though."

"Perhaps; but I wish you would not be so nervous. I hear hammering in the hall. Is that Lord Clavering's voice? He is instructing the workmen, and I thought just now that the wreath wanted white; white will brighten up the holly; green and red are dingy out of the sunshine, in spite of associations, I always talk German to the chilcrep, so Lord Clavering can think I'm a new governess."

She walked out of the room, gathering up her black silk dress, and holding close the folds of a scarlet cashmere round her shoulders.

The two ladies gazed into each other's faces and then Mrs. Beaumont laughed aloud.

"My dear Julia," she said, as soon as her voice was steady, "she will succeed. No man on earth has any choice against her. For my part I will stay here till you come from dinner—say I am exhausted; it is quite true, for I can't imagine what is to happen next, and Lord Clavering might question me. Now go out on the landing and see how Madame is conducting herself."

Speechlessly did Lady Clavering rise and go forth, and as she looked down on the scene in the hall she could not do other than wonder and admire. Madame was there, making the place radiant with her beauty, and Lord Clavering talking to her with an air of undisguised admiration.

"Mamma," said Muriel, running up stairs and seizing hold of Lady Clavering's hand, "Anna and I did not know exactly what to say when papa asked who Madame was; we did not know quite. We said she was granny's friend; that she had done our German exercises with us for a week. Was that right?"

"Quite right, darling; she is your friend too. Is it Madame who is advising papa to have the white chrysanthemums?"

"Yes; and the lamps are not to be colored, but white, all alike."

"Do you like it?" called out Lord Clavering.

"Our new friand has a fine taste in these matters."

"Madame is sure to be right."

"We are going to rehearse our play with Madame to-night, and the end of gallery is to be lighted on purpose; but only grandmamma is to see us," said Anna.

It was quite evident already that the beautiful stranger had begun to rule the house.

The next day came. Every old pensioner, every poor woman, every curious child, had seen, and admired, and wondered over that miracle of beauty and grace, that marvel of kindness and cleverness, the sweet-voiced foreign-tongued Madame. And then toward evening she disappeared; and being away and out of sight, Lord Clavering, after the great exertions of the day, including a matchless run with his beloved foxhounds never spoke of her until quite late at night. Then,

"My dear Julia, I never saw anything so exquisitely lovely in my life."

"Nor did I," said her ladyship quietly.

Receiving no answer, she looked up in some surprise; his lordship was sound asleep.

CHAPTER IV.

The festivities went on just as Lady Clavering had decribed. Everywhere, somehow, was felt the spirit and the presence of the beautiful lady. The weather was bright, cold, crisp and frosty; not too cold, for there was peace in the air.

It felt that the whole earth, with its rebellious hearts and boisterous winds, had become hushed this Christmas; while in Clavering Castle; little suspected, a story was working itself out to the end. The beautiful stranger was the centre of everything. How it had so suddenly grown to be so, no one knew. She never sat at their tables; she had never been seen to eat or drink; she always wore the flowing black dress; and she was always wrapped in the cashmere shawl. Everything that had been done had owed something to her doing, everything she said was felt instantly to be right; everything she touched appeared immediately to put on a new beauty. It was a power so instantly felt, and so unhesitatingly recognized, that the inmates of the house sought after her for help, for advice, for final approval, for courage and strength. Even the very enjoyment seemed to grow greater from her presense. In the adventures of the great ball her words worked magical. She stood at the top of the great room, and led off the dance with Lord Clavering; but when the end came, everybody felt that each had had a full share of personal gratification; eveybody's ambition seemed to have been fulfilled, and everybody's hopes gratified.

After the first few minutes the beautiful lady had not been seen to dance any longer, and had only again been visible when the help of some wiser head or cunning hand was wanted.

Everything was successful. Everything was so absorbing that there was no time to stand still and wonder over the new inmate, who had come so strangely to the castle; but everybody felt the bright influence, and some found time to whisper that, anyhow, she had come for good.

But a slight yet distinct change had come on Lady Clavering. She whose rule had been perfect and indisputable, because gentle and good, ruled no more. It was felt in some way quite impossible to describe, that she waited and obeyed.

Thus the day came for the great county ball, which a time-honored custom had caused to be held at the castle. The Shorts and the Greysons were ready with their tableaux, and perfect in their parts. All the necessary machinery was fixed, and there was to be a final rehearsal of the new one suggested by Madame, and eagerly indorsed on all sides,—The Marriage of Strongbow. The genius displayed in the arrangement of scenery was a match for all the rest. No one felt any doubt; everyone admired and applauded and longed for the final show,—the prostrate warriors, the gravely-clad monks, the exulting bystanders, the troop of beautiful maidens. It was a most popular idea, this Marriage of Strongbow. It took all the pretty girls in the house who had nothing to do but stand still and look beautiful, which every one of them in their secret hearts felt themselves unquestionably capable of doing. But the bride was to be Madame; crowned and clad in pure white she was to be; and whether any one there could look lovely by her side was a very doubtful matter in Lady Clavering's mind. And then came the question, who was to be Strongbow? Lord Clavering? Madame would have no one else. Her lips had spoked it and though Lord Clavering trembled he obeyed. Never was there such a rehearsal as the last and the full-dressed one, in the room darkened for the purpose. How Madame fixed her Strongbow with her half-fearful, asking, modest, glittering eye! It was not the mere nervousness of acting that made the strong man quiver in every nerve.

Then it was over, and people said that it would do perfectly: that it was the grandest idea and the finest tableau that had ever been seen.

Some of them wished to discuss the matter with Madame, but she was gone, not to be found, at least for the present—lost.

It was a night full af stars, with the moon no the laurels making diamonds everywhere. Out in the bright, cold, clear silence stood the beautiful lady. She had always seemed to know her way everywhere, both in the house and out of it. The people also had felt that she knew them; and she had called the servants at once by their proper names.

There she stood, nearly a mile from the house, in the shadow of the spreading limbs of a huge oak-tree; and there she listened—listened as if life or death depended on what she might hear. It came at last—the carriage that had been sent to the Clavering station for Lord Dayham; and there, sending forth the fragrance of some very fine tobacco on the air, by the side of the groom he sat.

Five minutes afterwards the beautiful lady was in the great hall, and shading her eyes with her hand, as it were to avoid the streams of brilliant light that made interior of the house the greatest imaginable contrast to the pure, pale, clear brilliance of the solemn waiting world outside, she said to a servent who happened to be passing, "Where is Lord Clavering?"

"He is in the library, madame. I have just left him there."

Then the lady went to the door of that room where the reader first saw the master and the mistress of the house, and knocked. On being told to come in, she entered and walked quietly up to Lord Clavering, who was at his table writing. He rose to meet her with an air of admiring respect.

She said, "Lord Dayham is arrived. He is with Lady Clavering in her sitting room. Directions were sent to him by the groom who met him at the station that he was to go there first, Lord Clavering, I am his wife!"

He started, and almost jumped away from her.

"We were married two months ago at Florence. I was there with my aunt, Lady Mary. I am the daughter of your cousin. My father was the husband of a lady you once wished to marry, and you have never forgotten the way in which he succeeded with her."

"Mary Huntly, I ought to have been asked. You have robbed me of my son's duty. What do you propose to yourself by getting into the house this way?" He looked and spoke very angrily.

"I came to ask you to give me back my mother," she said, shaking with emotion and with her wonderfully beautiful face agonized suddenly with tears. "Lord Dayham, my husband, before our marriage, wrote to Lady Clavering, and she promised to try to change your state of feelings towards us, but assured him to get anything but a refusal from you at that moment would be quite impossible. Lord Dayham, would not have married me in the face of your refusal. He would not, therefore, run the risk of asking you. We asked no one—not even my mother. We loved; we were both of us good and true. I was his equal, and there was no reasonable objection to our marriage; therefore we married. And now, now—turn us out if you please. I care for nothing, dread nothing; and I only want one thing; that thing I am here to get. Give me back my mother!

She uttered the words with a wail so subduing that it seemed to pierce Lord Clavering's soul. She trembled from head to foot, the tears coursed down her flushed cheeks in streams. "I can't live without my mother. Give me back my mother!" and the moisture rose to Lord Clavering's eyes as he saw and heard her.

"You must explain yourself," he said making her sit down by him. What have I to do with your mother?"

"She refuses to see me," sobbed Lady Dayham. "My dear mother, the great blessing of my life, my darling, my darling—she won't see me because I have married your son. She says you embittered her husband's life; that you can't think anything but evil of the dead; that you have allowed a ridiculous idea of having suffered injustice to disgrace your life; and that my marrying the son of such a man separates me from her for ever, or at least, til you come to your senses, and ask her to forgive you, and receive me back. O Lord Clavering! a small thing, as you thought it—only a resolution never to see or to think well of one fellow-creature—has been persevered in till it has lost you a son's obedience, and broken my heart almost. I cannot live with an angry mother; I cannot endure life apart from her. I love her—I cling to her—I long for her! she has always been the tenderest mother alive, and now—now! Give her back to me. It all depends on you."

"Then tell me what I shall do," he said with cast-down eyes, and speaking gently. "I did not know—I did not think. But to have my son married without my knowledge—is there no mortification to me, do you suppose, in having the world made acquainted with so degrading a fact?"

"It was all your own fault. How could we help it? I am in every way fit to be his wife. He had a right to chose me. I have come here to make things right. Chance has favored me. The Strongbow of to-night must be Lord Dayham. You must immediately tell all the world assembled here the fact of our marriage, and you must tell the truth—say who I am, and why we married without your knowledge. All the people in the county who have reached middle age remember my father, and know of your quarrel with him. Nothing but truth can help us. And go to-morrow to Huntly, and get me back my mother."

Once more the violence of her emotion seemed to overcome her, and she sank on her knees at Lord Clavering's feet.

That night, when Lord Dayham appeared as Strongbow, there was a sound like the hushed breath of a multitude surprised, wonder-struck. The bride dressed with the most wonderful beauty; a real bride, with the young sisters of her husband close to her silvery train. One more figure—Lord Clavering by his son's side—and then the curtain dropped, and people breathed again, and were only stopped in their applause by Lord Clavering appearing in his mock armor, and saying, "It is all true!" How they all talked! how they all cried out, "Once more!" The preceeding tableaux had all had their appearances. But no! Lady Dayham was embraceing her husband in a safe place behind the scenes, and they only appeared in time to open the ball. The good old county gossips remembered all about the quarrel, and those angry disappointed years which had followed on Mr. Huntly marrying Kate Latimer. They talked of nothing else; and everybody rejoiced over the ending of so long cherished a grief.

But when at last people began to go away, and others to get to bed, Lord Clavering and Lord Dayham were found to be going too—through the night to Mrs. Huntly—through the night to say, "I repent; I am glad to get your daughter for my child—to ask forgiveness and peace."

"Oh take all you want, and welcome," said Mrs. Huntly; "only you will please to remember that I never loved any man but my husband, and that you never had a chance with me—no never!"

Trying to Obey Orders.

A story is told of a negro in Virginia, whose master threatened to give him a flogging if he boiled his eggs hard again. Next morning the eggs came to the table still harder than before.

"You rascal," shouted the enraged planter, "didn't I tell you to boil these eggs soft?"

"Yes, massa," said the frightened slave "an' I got up at two o'clock dis mornin, an' biled 'em five hours, an' it seems to me I nebber kin get dese eggs softer!"

During the war, one of the Northern hotel-keepers was on a visit to Norfolk. The eggs came to the table boiled hard.

"Look here," said the hotel-keeper, "Sambo, these eggs are boiled too hard. Now take my watch and boil some three minutes by it."

He gave the negro his splendid gold watch. In about five minutes the freedman returned with the eggs and watch on the same plate. The watch was wet.

"What have you been doing to my watch?" asked the Northern visitor. Why, it's all wet."

"Yes, sah," said the negro, "I biled de watch wid de eggs. All right dis time, sah."

Little Things to Please Everybody.

—What nations produce most marriages?—Faci-nation.

—The popular business with young ladies—Husbandry.

—The article chiefly sold at the county fairs—The Visitor.

—Though an honest merchant is a plain dealer, a carpenter is a deal planer.

—What did the spider do when he came out of the ark? He took a fly and went home.

—"Who breaks pays." This does not apply to railroads, as they pay men to brake.

—A prudent man, says a witty Frenchman, is like a pin—his head prevents him from going too far.

—A popular parlor magazine—A big kerosene lamp. They will furnish reading matter for the million.

—What is the difference between bayonets and bullets? Bayonets are driven, but bullets are lead.

—A cotemporary speaks of a fashionable tailor as being one of the old war horses of the trade. A heavy charger probably.

—What is the difference between a Jew and a lawyer? The one gets his law from the prophets, the other his profits from the law.

—What is the difference between the engine-driver and a passenger who ha lost the train? One is right in front, the other left behind.

—A shrewd old gentleman once said to his daughter: "Be sure, my dear never marry a poor man; but remember that the poorest man in the world is one that has money and nothing else."

Moral and Religious.

OUT OF THE DEPTHS.

Thou knowest, Lord, the thousand pitfalls that beset
This thorny head of mine;
Thou knowest all the agonizing—all the strife;
Thou knowest how the golden frumage of my life
Has turned to bitter wine.

Thou knowest all the heavy days and wakeful nights,
My lightest care and need;
Thou countest every tear that flows adown my cheek;
My God! Thou knowest I am helpless, frail and weak;
As any bruised reed;

Small need to name my grief. Thou knowest all my heart—
A sorely troubled thing!
Oh! Thou who stilled the stormy waves of Galilee,
Speak now Thy wondrous "Peace be still" to me—
I hear Thee whispering.

E'en now a calm unspeakable fills my soul;
I own Thy power divine;
Dear Lord! I freely take the bitter, bitter cup;
Yes to the dregs—the very dregs—I drain it up;
My will be lost in Thine!

Japanese Ideas of Liberality.

[The following is part of an address recently delivered by a young Japanese student in this country, at the quarterly concert of a Missionary Society.]

Perhaps you Americans, one of whose admirable characteristics, (and I do not say it in satyre) is your exceeding inquisitiveness, are curious to know what I, who, though a heathen, as you would call me, have been altogether three years among Christians, think about Christianity, or what is my religion; or again you may ask why I do not become a Christian, as a minister did ask me some time ago.

Although I do not like to discuss religion because there is no criterion by which we can settle our differences unless we have the same religion, yet as I think that the best way to understand each other is to speak out our views openly, I shall try to do so in as few words as possible.

Certainly it is a very convenient policy to do as Romans do when you are among Romans. No less here will it be so for me to profess myself a Christian, even with such a zeal as to discard my heathenish appellation and call myself a Philip or a John, not "John Chinaman," but simply John, a Christian John, such a John as John Howard or John Brown. But such a conversion is not one in which I believe. Such a convert will be a Mohammedan when he goes to Turkey, and a Mormon when he goes to Utah, especially if he has a matrimonial adventure in view. This is the conversion of a politician, and I am not a politician, but a student. This is the reason why I do not become a so called Christian.

Well, then, what do I think about Christianity, and what is my religion? I think a great deal about Christianity, but I cannot make it my religion, for as yet I am very ignorant of it; nor yet am I a Buddhist, a Mohammedan, or a follower of Confucius, for the same reason. In short I have not yet found the truth, but am humbly seeking after it, and just for the present, to seek after the truth is my religion. In the meantime I firmly believe in religious liberty. I believe that we ought to respect the opinions of other people as much as we can, whether they be theists or atheists. Let Plato be Plato and Aristotle be Aristotle. Let Beecher be Beecher and Spencer be Spencer. I respect one no less than the other. I think that we ought openly to affirm what we believe to be the truth. As long as Spencer is in earnest in his belief, if I were a member of Plymouth church, I would not say that Beecher is right and Spencer wrong. Far less would I revile Tindall's belief concerning prayer. For I believe, with the Protestants, that no human being is infallible, and therefore that Cuyler, nay, all the Christians, or even all the world, may be wrong, and Tyndall alone right. Perhaps hereafter we may find some hidden meaning of the Gospel, which will make Tyndall's belief concerning prayer all right. Remember that Galileo was condemned by those who quoted the authority of the Bible, but now the Bible and Galileo go together very well. These are the reasons why I believe in freedom of opinion. Let our countrymen become Christians according to their own sincere conviction, but not under any influence of intimidation or enticement. Let the Christianity which will bless Japan be that of love, but not that of hell-fire. Perhaps, you may use hell-fire, but I am sure it will not work very well in Japan, for hell-fire has been preached by the Buddhist priests for more than a thousand years.

Youth's Department.

Kisty's Figs.

BY PENN SHIRLEY.

I told you, not very long ago, about Kisty's running away to find "the girl with a pincushin hood on." Mrs. Reed hardly dared to trust her little daughter out of her sight after that till papa had put a button on the gate.

Then Kisty used to take her dollies into the back yard and play there by the hour together.

They were ranged in a row on the lowest step of the porch, one bright morning, watchiug Kisty digging in the dirt. She was very busy indeed, for she had a garden to make, and nothing to work with but an iron spoon and a mustard-box.

Jingle! jingle! up the street.

"Spect him's the cookey-man!" cried she, tumbling over her spoon in her haste to tell Norah.

The baker reached the kitchen door almost as soon as Kisty.

"Anything to-day, mam?"

"Two white loaves, if you please, said Mrs. Reed, who was helping about the fruit-cake. Run, Kisty," and get mamma's purse off her bureau."

The child brought it, and looked on while the bread was being paid for.

"Here, dear!" said her mother, shaking some soiled visiting cards out of the porte-monaie, "you may have these to play with. Now put mamma's purse back where you found it."

Kisty was gone some time, but presently she ran down again to her garden. Mrs. Reed would not have felt so easy stoning raisins in the pantry if she had known the baker had left the gate unfastened.

Kisty was not slow in discovering the fact. Unfortunately she still held the cards in her hand. They gave her an idea.

"Kisty'll go a calling," said she, whisking through the gateway, with a back glance to see if anybody was looking. She felt quite equal to the undertaking, for hadn't she been visiting with her mother once, and carried the card case all the way?

"Come in oo pitty pet' That's what the lady'll say," she prattled on to herself, climbing the steps of the first house round the corner, dragging armless Rosy after her by her stocking-yarn hair.

"Oo! what a high-up bell! Spect the man's thought Kisty's bigger."

Even on tip-toe she couldn't reach it. She put rosy down and stood on top of her; but then she could only touch the bell-knob with the ends of her fingers.

"Oh! my sus! Guess Kisty'll have to knock!" and she did knock, so very gently that nobody in the world could have heard her.

"Peoples is gone way off," said she, slipping a cark under the door as she had seen he mamma do when nobody answered her ring. "Kisty'll give 'em a card for when they come back. Her didn't on't to be selfish girl!"

After that she did not try to pull any more bell-knobs, but contented herself with leaving cards at every house on that side of the street. One happened to be at a church another at an oyster saloon, but it was all the same to Kisty.

When she got to the provision store on the second corner from home, she had only a single card left. As the door stood open she carried it in, and ran up to a pleasant-looking clerk who was sorting apples.

'Kisty's come a-callin'," said she blandly, sitting down on a pile of codfish.

"What upon earth!" cried the young man, starting in surprise at the droll little figure.

"Me and Rose's come a-callin'," repeated Kisty holding up the long sufferind dolly, "and her's tired. Take her's will oo?

"Thank you, no, you must excuse me! What's your name—Grandmother Gripsey?"

"Kisty Weed," said she drumming her small boot-heels against the codfish in some resentment at being called "grandmother."

"Where do you live?"

What made folks forever and ever ask her that? She drew in her lips till there wasn't a snip of scarlet to be seen, she was so afraid she would tell, for she shrewdly suspected the man wanted to send her home. In offering Rosy to the clerk, she had dropped her card, an it lay on the floor face upward, with "Mrs. Henry Reed, No. 6 Oak St.," written very clearly on it.

"Is that yours?" asked the young man reading the address.

"It's mamma's; for when Kisty goes a-callin'," said she with a longing glance at the piles of fruit, 'Kisty loves appuls, her does;"

The clerk ran to door the and called to a boy in a market wagon.

"Here, Jim, you have orders on Oak street leave this bundle at No 6, will you?"

Then, almost before Kisty knew it, he had lifted her and Rosy upon the seat, and given the boy the card so he could not mistake the direction.

The horse trotted off at a brisk pace, and the square baskets on the floor of the wagon danced up and down the middle. These were filled with vegetables and other articles that people had ordered for their dinners, and Kisty's driver every now and then stopped at a door to leave one, She found it a great fun to go about in this fashion and she was having a most delightful time when they drew up at her fathers, house on Oak stseet.

"Kisty don't want to be home!" said she, with a twinge of conscience at the thought of meeting her mother, for in the depths of her little heart she knew it was wrong to run away. But when the boy lured her with a paper of figs, she was wonderfully soothed. She let him lift her down at once, and skipped past him through the back gate. Of course he ought to have gone in with her and told her mother where he found her; but being a bashful boy, he did no such thing. He watched her in at the kitchen-door, and then drove off.

Nobody had missed Kisty. Her mother was up-stairs combing her hair when she came trotting in with Rosy's dress full of figs.

"See what Kisty's got for mamma!"

"Why, where did you get them, child?"

"Way, way off," said Kisty evasively. "Isn't 'em good?"

Mrs. Reed looked at her little daughter in amazement. She had run against a molasses barrel in the store and smeared her frock, and then whitened it in spots with flour; and as her mother raised her on her lap, she perceived an unmistakable odor of fish about her.

"Kisty, where have you been?" said she sternly. "Tell mamma the truth."

"Riding way, way off," persisted the child, sobbing now.

"But who gave you the figs?"

"Oh! the queer old boy what took Kisty riding!"

Mrs. Reed opened the window and gazed up street and down, but did not see any "queer old boy." What could be the meaning of this wild story? Nora knew nothing about it. "And surely," thought Mrs. Reed, "if a man had brought my baby home, he would have left her in somebody's care."

Could she have got the figs at the grocery opposite? Her mother had sometimes let her run over there to buy a cent's worth of peanuts, while she stood in the doorway watching her. But the grocer was not fond of children; that he should have given her the figs seemed unlikely.

Mrs. Reed's purse still lay on the bureau where Kisty had put it. She unclasped it with an uneasy feeling. She distinctly remembered that after paying the baker, there had been left a ten-cent scrip and a roll of bills, and now the scrip was gone. Mrs. Reed recollected with a throb of pain that Kisty had been a long time in carrying back the porte-monnaie.

"Mamma has lost some money. Does Kisty know anything about it?"

"No'm,' sobbed the child, terrified at her mother's solemn tone.

"Didn't my little daughter buy figs with it? Think a minute,"

"No, her didn't," said Kisty, smothering herself in her apron.

Mrs. Reed was distressed.

"It was very naughty to spend mamma's money," said she gravely, "but it would be a great deal naughtier if Kisty should tell a wrong story about it."

"Kisty didn't mean to. Kisty's sorry," cried the baby. "Her will be good!"

"And mother's darling won't ever do such a dreadful thing again, will she?" said Mrs. Reed, much relieved. "Don't you think mamma ought to tie these wicked hands to make them remember?"

"Yes'm" said Kisty meekly.

Five minutes after Norah knocked at the door. Kisty sat on the bed, her chubby wrists bound together with a neck-ribbon.

"Here's tin cints, ma'am, as I found under the kitchen-table," said Norah. "Thinks I it's yourself as droped it."

"Kisty didn't take mamma's money, did her?" shouted the little gypsy gleefully. "Isn't it so nice Kisty didn't take mamma's money?"

"The next time I punish Kisty, I will try to be sure we both know what the punishment is for," thought Mrs. Reed, as between laughing and crying she untied the child's hands. "How shall I ever learn to bring up my baby?"

KATHAIRON

Only 50 Cents per Bottle.

It promotes the GROWTH, PRESERVES the COLOR, and increases the Vigor and BEAUTY of the HAIR.

OVER THIRTY YEARS AGO LYON'S KATHAIRON FOR THE HAIR was first placed in the market by Professor E. Thomas Lyon, a graduate of Princeton College. The name is derived from the Greek, "KATHRO," signifying to cleanse, purify, rejuvenate, or restore. The favor it has received, and the popularity it has obtained, is unprecedented and incredible. It increases the GROWTH and BEAUTY of the Hair. It is a delightful dressing. It eradicates Dandruff. It prevents the Hair from turning gray. It keeps the head cool, and gives the hair a rich, soft, glossy appearance. It is the SAME in QUANTITY and QUALITY as it was over a QUARTER of a CENTURY AGO, and is sold by all Druggists and Country Stores at only Fifty Cents per Bottle.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN

JURUBEBA

BLOOD PURIFIER

Is the most powerful cleanser, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

It is specially adapted to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, Scrofula, &c., &c.

When weary and languid from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take place of energy and vigor the system needs a Tonic to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

In the heat of Summer, frequently the Liver and Spleen do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to billious derangement.

DR. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthening the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED AND ENFEEBLED ORGANS.

It should be freely taken, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

FOR THE REPUBLICAN.

MILESBURG, June 9th, 1873.

MR. EDITOR.

In the REPUBLICAN of last week there appeared a piece written from Rebersburg on Normal Schools. The writer publishes a notice in a very sarcastic way. He tells the people that Professer Henry Meyer is about to establish a Normal School at that place for the benefit of those who propose teaching, and also informs us that there is to be another Normal School at Centre Hall under the control of Supt. Magee. He then contrasts the ability of the two Professors. Prof. Meyer is a young man of decided ability and of refined christian character, this is true. Professor Magee is a first class man and able educator. He then tells us that it is a well known fact that any person can get a certificate by attending the official Normal School at Centre Hall no matter what his literary attainments may be. This is false, come from whom it may. Prof. Magee is a man too pure in principles to pactice any such imposition on the people of the County of which he is the head of the School Department. In fact in viewing things from the stand point from which Mr. F writes, all the ability of which Prof. Magee is possessed is to leech money from the patrons of the Centre Hall Normal School. This is another subterfuge, casting reflections on the intelligence of the Directors of the county who elected Prof. Magee the third time as Supt. where Professor Meyer was his competitor for that office. We do not, nor will not say a hard word of Prof. Meyer, we respect him and as such we trust ever to cherish and revere him. But to allow the impression to be made as Mr. F. would have us believe that our efficient Supt. is a money leech is an outrage to the educational interests of Centre County. Prof. Magee has the educational interests of the county at heart or he would not allow himself to be encumbered with a Normal School for if selling certificates to teachers is as lucrative a business as Mr. F. would have us believe why trouble with a Normal School? Mr. F's. article is a false fabrication. Adieu for this time.

THE NEW PENSION LAW.—The pension law, approved March 3, 1873, contains some new provisions of general interest.

All persons who, while in the service of the United States, may have lost the sight of both eyes or both hands or both feet, or may have been totally disabled in the same, or otherwise rendered helpless, are entitled to a pension of thirty-one dollars and twenty-five cents per month; those who may have lost one hand and one foot to twenty-four dollars per month; those who may have lost one hand or one foot or may have been totally and permanently disabled in the same, or otherwise so disabled as to be equivalent to the loss of a hand or a foot, to eighteen dollars per month. All who may have lost a leg above the knee and are so disabled thereby that they cannot use an artificial limb, are allowed twenty-four dollars per month.

Section fifty provides that the rate of eighteen dollars per month may be proportionally divided for any degree of disability established below the grades mentioned. The old law provides no rates between eight and eighteen dollars.

WHEREAS, Jesus our great exemplar made free use of Object in impressive truth the efore, Resolved.

That we earnestly recomend this mode of instruction to the Superintendents and teachers.

WHEREAS, the conversion of Children is the chief object of the S. S. therefore,

Resolved, That we earnestly admonish all S. School workers to labor with that object in view.

An Essay was read by W. F. Rightmire on the subject of Temperance in the S. School. Remarks by others.

The subject of Catichism in the S. S. was introduced by Rev. A. Rearich. Reflections were made by a number of other delegates.

THURSDAY MORNING SESSION.

The opening prayer was made by W. F. Rightmire. The Business Committee reported the following.

WHEREAS, the blighting, withering, damning curse of Intemperance prevails to an alarming extent, and WHEREAS, it is almost impossible to reform the inebriate and correct the habit of moderate drinking, therefore,

Resolved. That we will as Sunday School workers make use of all possible means for the promotion of total abstinence in our S. Scheols.

An Essay was then read by A. Sloat on the Cause of Mission in the S. School. Reflections were made by different delegates. Several points were discussed which elictied several animated speeches. An Essay was read by J. M. Longadorf on the Winter disease in the S. S. Remarks were made by several delegates. The Session closed with singing and Benediction.

The Children's meeting on Thursday was well attended and a general interest was manifested. A number of addresses were delivered by different ministers.

After the adjournment of the childrens meeting the Convention held a short session. The subject of Out door Work out side the Sabbath School was opened by S. T. Buck by making a short statement of the subject. The Business Committee offered the following Preamble and resolutions.

WHEREAS, the Missionary cause is one of the most fruitful means that can be employed in the conversion of the world, therefore, Resolved.

1st. That it is the sense of this Convention that Missionary contribution and work should be introduced into our S. Schools.

WHEREAS, there are no well founded reasons for the Winter disease in our Sunday Schools therefore, Resolved.

2nd. That we recommend to all Superintendents and S. S. workers, to give the children privilege to use the voting pills believing it will in every case cure said disease. Resolved.

3rd. That we consider the Question Box in our S. S. Convention of considerable interest and importance.

Session closed with singing and Dialogue.

EVENING SESSION.

Devotional exercises by S. T. Buck.

A lecture delivered to a large congregation by I. M. Pines on the subject of "Music in the Sabbath School." The resolutions were read by the Business Committee.

WHEREAS, not one-half of the children between 5 and 16 years in the United States attend Sabbath School, therefore,

Resolved That we as Pastors, Officers and Teachers, do all the out door work we can to bring the neglected in.

WHEREAS, Vocal and Instrumental Music is an important part in our S. School, therefore,

Resolved. That we urge our Superintendents and S. S. workers to cultivate the Musical talent in their respective Schools, especially the small children.

Whereas, in the estimation of the Convention the S. S. Music Book published by the Evangelical Association, entitled the "Evergreen," is second to none in the Market, therefore, Resolved,

1st. That we hail it with joy and confidently recommend it to all Sunday Schools.

2nd. That we decidedly disapprove of the absence of so many of the delegates to their Convention.

3rd. That we extend our hearty thanks to the friends of Logansville and Vicinity, for their hospitality during our stay with them and to singers for their excellent Music during our Convention.

The Question Box was opened and all the questions answered.

The Convention closed with singing and Benediction.

BOALSBURG, June 3, 1873.

MR. EDITOR:—Thinking, perhaps, your many readers would like to hear how Decoration Day was observed in Harris twp., we take the liberty of informing them through your interesting paper. This is the fourth year these ceremonies have been observed at Boalsburg We have, buried in the township, about twenty-five soldiers, ten of whom are interred in the cemetery at Boalsburg. On Friday morning, May 30, the young folks proceeded to the mountain in wagons for the purpose of gathering flowers and evergreens for the occasion. The day was cool, the roads excellent, and we all had a merry trip, returning about noon. At 5 P. M., our two excellent brass bands arrived at the Academy, where the procession was being formed, consisting of the ministers, the veterans, our three Sabbath schools, (the Union, Edward Kreamer, Supt., the Reformed, Henry Keller, Supt., and the Lutheran, Dr. Rhone, Supt), followed by a large concourse of citizens. The procession moved at 6 o'clock, headed by the two bands, and marched to the cemetery, the whole commanded by Col. James T. Stuart, (Marshal), assisted by Messrs. H. H. Muthersbaugh and Geo. B. Jack. On arriving at the cemetery the audience sang that beautiful and appropriate hymn "America," after which prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Williams, pastor of the Lutheran Church at this place, then a very appropriate address was delivered by Rev. Bob't Hamill, D. D., which was followed with a dirge by both bands, after which D. S. Keller, Esq., one of the veterans of the war, delivered an oration, a copy of which we herewith append. The graves were thus decorated with flowers by the Veterns assisted by the little children, after which followed the benediction by Rev. Wm. H. Groh pastor of the Reformed Church at this place, when the crowd returned to their homes feeling that they had once more performed their sincere duty to our fallen braves.

[For want of room we are compelled to omit the excellent and very appropriate address of D. S. Keller, Esq.—ED.]

BUSINESS NOTICES.

☞ BY ONE OF THE LEADING PHYSICIANS of Philadelphia city.—A careful examination of mortuary statistics established the fact that one adult person out of every six dies of consumption, and so alarmingly is this disease gaining the ascendancy over all other ills to which flesh is heir, that its approach to one's immediate circle is regarded with perfect horror. If you will carefully examine the records of Materia Medica you will invariably discover that the general want of success in treating diseases has not been a deficiency of pathological knowledge of the functions affected, but of a suitable compound that would act upon the disease and all the sympathetic affections.

This want has at last been met in the Bitter Wine of Iron, prepared by the celebrated Dr. E. F. Kunkle, No 259 North Ninth street, Philadelphia. This excellent compound can be taken by persons with the most delicate stomach without any debilitating effect always giving strength and largely increasing the nervous energy of the patient. In all cases of pulmonary complaints it is admirably adapted to relieve the severity of the symptoms in the advanced stages of the disease, or to arrest it in its incipiency. If you want something that will give you strength, a good appetite, build up your constitution, and in place of soreness and a lack of energy, give you a brisk and vigorous feeling, try Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron. It has already received themeed of praise from thousands who have tested its virtues, and for many years maintained its reputation with unfaded popularity.

Price $1 per bottle. E. F. KUNKEL, Sole Proprietor, No. 259 North Ninth street, below Vine, Philadelphia.

Ask for Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron, and take no other. v4n22-1y

For loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility in their various forms, Perro-Phosphorated Elixir of Calisaya made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulent tonic for patien's recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and intermittent fevers. 21-4t

OUR AMERICAN PEOPLE

Are laden with debt, pecuniarily and otherwise, and especially is an enormous debt of gratitude due from them to Messers. STUART, PETERSON & CO., of Philadelphia, for the opportune presentation of the great "Barley Sheaf" Cooking Stove. Among the many admirable qualities possessed by this favorite cook, is this:—That whilst fully heated and in excellent baking trim, there is a remarkable economy of fuel in progress! With wood and coal—it burns either—at advanced rates, this is a highly important consideration, and all prudent housekeepers will appreciate it. Several truly valuable additions have lately been made to the "Barley Sheaf," which we have not space to day to particularize. The extra heavy gas burning centre pieces, which hold the plates, are especially worthy of notice. Write for an Illustrated Descriptive Circular.

Centaur Liniment.

There is no pain which the Centaur Liniment will not relieve, no swelling it will not subdue and no lameness which it will not cure. This is strong language, but it is true. Where the parts are not gone, its effects are marvelous. It has produced more cures of rheumatism, neuralgia, lock-jaw, palsy, sprains, swellings, caked-breasts, scalds, burns, salt-rheum, earache, &c., upon the human frame, and of strains spavin, galls. &c., upon animals in one year than have all other pretended remedies since the world began. It is a counter-irritant, an all-healing pain reliever. Cripples throw away their crutches, the lame walk, poisonous bites are endered harmless, and the wounded are healed without a scar. It is no humbug. The recipe is published around each bottle. It is selling as no article ever before sold, and it sells because it does just what it pretends to do. Those who now suffer from rheumatism, pain or swelling, deserve to suffer if they will not use Centaur Liniment. More than 1000 certificates of remarkable cures, including frozen limbs, chronic rheumatism, gout, running tumors, &c., have been received. We will send a circular containing certificates, the recipe, &c., gratis, to any one requesting it. One bottle of the yellow wrapper Centaur Liniment is worth one hundred dollars for spavined or sweenied horses and mules, or for screw-worm in sheep. Stock-owners—this liniment is worth your attention. No family should be without Centaur Liniment. Price, 50c. a bottle, large bottles $1.00. J. B. ROSE & Co., 53 Broadway, New York.

CASTORIA is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

TWO OF THE BEST FARMS

IN MIFFLIN COUNTY AT

PRIVATE SALE!

The undersigned offers at private sale, a farm situated in Armagh township, Mifflin County, within one mile of Milroy, known as the Sol. Reed place on the turnpike leading to Bellefonte, containing more or less, divided off into 13 acre fields and recently fenced with about 3000 panel of locust posts and chestnut rails, on which are erected a two story Brick House, with good water at door, Bank Barn with water in yard, Corn House, Carriage House, Hog pen, and other improvements—all of the best kind, together with a young Orchard of thriving trees. This is one of the finest farms in the County.

117 ACRES

ALSO

The farm known as the John McDowell place, situate within a few hundred yards of the Milroy depot, containing more or less, all cleared excepting about 10 acres of timber, limed with 100 bushels to the acre, divided into convenient fields, mostly enclosed with locust post and chestnut rail fences, on which are erected a good two-story Stone House, Bank Barn, Corn and Carriage House, Hog Pen, Sheep Pen, Wood and wash House, and various other outbuildings. This property has running water at the door, has a good Orchard and other fruit trees, and is in every respect a desirable one. It can be easily divided into two parts if purchasers desire it.

228 ACRES

Any person desirous of viewing the above property or ascertaining terms, &c., can call on or address George Bates, Lewistown, Pa., or the undersigned on the property.

WISHART'S PINE TREE TAR CORDIAL,

NATURE'S GREAT REMEDY FOR THE Throat & Lungs.

It is gratifying to us to inform the public that Dr. L. Q. C. Wishart's Pine Tree Tar Cordial, for Throat and Lung Diseases, has gained an enviable reputation from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, and from thence to some of the first families of Europe, not through the press alone, but by persons throughout the States actually benefitted and cured at his office. While he publishes less, so say our reporters, he is unable to supply the demand. It gains and holds its reputation—

First. Not by stopping cough, but by loosening and assisting nature to throw off the unhealthy matter collected about the throat and bronchial tubes, which causes irritation.

Second. It removes the cause of irritation (which produces cough) of the mucous membrane and bronchial tubes, assists the lungs to act and throw off the unhealthy secretions, and purifies the blood.

Third. It is free from squills, lobelia, ipicac and opium, of which most throat and lung remedies are composed, which allay cough only, and disorganize the stomach. It has a soothing effect on the stomach, acts on the liver and kidneys, and lymphatic and nervous regions, thus reaching to every part of the system, and in its invigorating and purifying effects it has gained a reputation which it must hold above all others in the market.

WHAT THE OAK THINKS.

BY CAROLINE M. HEWINS.

"Oak tree, are you sleeping?
Walnut buds have burst their sheath;
Red keys strew the ground beneath
Maples skyward creeping,—
Oak tree, what! still sleeping!

Oak tree, are you wearing
Last year's rags, while the elms are green;
Why is king worse clad than queen!
Come, the spring winds daring,
Crown and mantle wearing."

"If my rags I'm wearing,
Wait awhile, till elms are bare,
Till the keen October air
Walnut leaves is tearing!
Rare gems I'll be wearing.

When the flower stalks tender
Bowed and snapped without in,
Then my scarlet canopy
With its royal splender
Gives them covering tender.

What if I seem sleeping!
Is it not worth while to wait
For such glory though it's late!
Though I'm silence keeping,
Waking follows sleeping.

A $2.50 Ice-House.

Let me tell your readers how I have kept ice the four past seasons, and my ice-house cost me only 2.50 I boarded up one corner of my cow shed, so that I had an inclosure, or room, 8 by 10 feet, and 7 feet high to the floor over-head, or rather I boarded up only one side; the shed formed two sides, and the fourth side was left until the ice was put in. This fourth side is taken down every year to slide the ice in, and then boarded up again. I used common boards, and myself and and put it up, in readiness for the ice, in two hours. Cost—120 feet old board, $1.50; labor $1.00; total, $2.50. I put six inches of chip dirt on the ground, and on that six inches of sawdust for a bottom or floor for the ice. The ice was then put in, packing it solidly as possible by filling up the crevices between the cakes with snow or pounded ice. A space of about a foot was left between the ice and the sides of the room. This was filled with sawdust; also a foot of sawdust was put on top of the ice, filling it nearly up to the floor overhead. The fouth side was then boarded up and filled with sawdust the same as the rest. A small space was left underneath the floor for ventilation. I get the ice out by taking up the floor over it.

In this way I have kept ice the four past seasons till September. The reason I did not have it later in the season was, I made my room too small to allow for waste and supply our wants besides. It holds only four loads or ice. If the room was twelve feet square (thus making room for a block of ice ten feet square) I am confident that I could keep it the year round. The larger the body of ice the smaller the proportional waste. I have found the greatest waste to rise from currents of air passing upward though or around the ice. The drainage at the bottom which must be secured, is apt to make and leave passages for the air to enter. To avoid this, it is a good plan to bank up around the ice room with sawdust or other loose materials, especially on the side where the waste of ice-water runs out.

Having used ice four seasons, we would sooner fail to fill the pork barrel than the ice-house. We find it an indispensable article for comfortable housekeeping in hot weather; and my hired help would consider themselves poorly equipped for a day's work in the hay or harvest fields without a liberal piece of ice in the pail of drink. We have adopted the plan of cold drinks instead of hot ones, and are pleased with the results. Half a ton of ice will do more and better work in our fields, during the summer months, than half a barrel of the best whiskey, and the employed as well the employer be largely benefited. February is the best month for farmers to lay in their stock of ice. Let us secure a good supply, and thus institute a reform in our harvest fields, and at the same time keep things cool and quiet in the house.—H. G., in Country Gentlemen.

Cooked Meats for Fowels.

Fowls, as well as dogs become quarrelsome if fed on raw meat. Besides cooking makes it more nutritious. When raw, it is rather harsh and crude, compared with the mild natural diet of worms and grubs, which for the most part soft, and easily dissolved by digestion. Occasionally, for variety, a little meat may be given raw. Fish when plenty, is more conveniently given boiled, because in that state the fowls easily pick every morsal from the bones, and no mincing is required. Chandlers' scraps have the advantage of being already cooked, and on that account as well many others, they are excellent.—The Poultry World.

NEBRASKA PRODUCTS.

We are in the reciept of Department of Agriculture Report for the month of November and December. From an examination of the table of crops for 1872, we learn that Nebraska stands seventh in the list for corn producing, although the highest only excels our average 1½ bushels per acre, being 40½.

In wheat she ranks as sixth, the highest being Minnesota 18.7 bushels, Nebraska 17.5 bushels.

On Rye we rank third, California first 29.1. Nebraska 21.5.

Oats Nebraska heads the list, 40 bushels per acre, the next highest California 38.5.

Barley also is produced here in greatest quantity. Our yield being 31.6, while the next is Wisconsin 28.6.

Buckwheat also attests our fertile soil and fruitful climate. Nebraska leads the list with 27.1 bushels per acre, Maine following with 25.5.

The yield of potatoes puts us fourth on the list, with 220 bushels per acre, the highest is Iowa with 133.

Our rich native grasses puts us fourth on the list, for Hay, of which we cut 1.40 tons per acre, California leading with 1.44.

Sweet things in our sweet rich soil, ahead of any other state Sorghum molasses flows here at the rate of 141 gals. per acre, while the next is Missouri 118.

By taking the average yield per acre of corn, wheat, rye, oats, barley, buckwheat and potatoes, we find that Nebraska excels any State in the union, heading the list with an average yield per acre of 42½ bushels, the second is Iowa with 42 bushels, California being third with 38½ bushels.

Here we have the figures to show that Nebraska heads the list on four important products, while her average is better on corn, wheat, rye, oats, barley, buckwheat and potatoes than any other State in the Union.

Let thinking men, who are considering a change of location, ponder the above facts, and cast their lot in the most favored Agricultural State in the Union.—Nebraska Watchman.

The Great Western Farm Insurance Co.—Life Insurance and Farm Insurance.

BY PROF. J. D GOELLER.

Life insurance means honesty for some men and policy for many more. In no other way can they pay their debts, or obey the apostle's charge that a man "provide for his own and especially those of his own house."

But good as is life insurance, farm insurance in the shape of lands sold on ten years credit is better.

Both give a great prize in return for a number of small annual payments. But farm insurance gives that boon in the midst of life, insurance only at the end of it. One gives it for a man himself to enjoy, the other only for his heirs. One performs, the other promises.

"Death," said an Irishman, "Is no great curse for it always comes just where we would have it, at the end of life and never at the beginning." But this is more than can be said of life insurance, for its blessings come at the wrong end of life, not like death and farm insurance, at the right end.

Besides, in farm insurance the payments are nine or ten, but in life insurance they may become so multitudinous that they will amount to several times the value of the prize drawn at last. The one is lottery, the other is square dealings.

Again farm insurance gives you in the outset a mine which pays for itself, for out of it can you dig not only a living but gold for all payments. Life insurance makes no such pentensions. It is all post mortem—and nothing "in the living present." In this aspect life insurance resembles the patent Tantalus of Sidney Smith. This reverend jocker had a bag of oats hung before the tongue of his carriage. The horse hearing the oats rattling just ahead, would rush forward with all his legs, yet could never quite thrust his nose into those dainties. On the other hand farm insurance gives a mess of grain before the journey begins, and all along many a baiting to prepare for each hard pull before the home stretch.

Nor is this all. What life insurance promises a fixed sum. But land given by farm insurance is always growing in value. Less than forty years ago the whole area of Iowa could have been bought for forty millions of dollars. It was sold to the United States for less than that. To-day it would bring more than ten times the sum.

Give me then first farm insurance and then life insuuance

Within thirty-three months, the Great Western Farm Insurance Company, alias the Burlington & Missouri River railroad company, have sold along their line, in Iowa and Nebraska, 478,988 acres to 4,425 purchasers, on ten years' credit, and six per cent. They now require no payment on the principal till the end of four years after purchase.

Farmer! are you insured?

Live Stock Matter.

The hay consumed by different animals does not vary greatly from three pounds daily each hundred pounds weight of the animals. The following table is the result of various experiments by different persons, and will be useful for farmers who wish to determine by calculation beforehand how their hay will hold out for the winter, 500 feet of timothy hay, in a full hay, being about one ton.

Working horses	3.00 pounds
Working oxen	2.40 pounds
Milk cows (Holdsingault's)	2.25 pounds
Milk cows (Lincoln's)	2.40 pounds
Young growing cattle	3.00 pounds
Steers	2.84 pounds
Dry cows	2.42 pounds
Sheep	3.00 pounds

WANTED.—MEN WHO WANT TO MAKE MONEY.
HERE IS AN OPPORTUNITY FOR MAKING MONEY RARELY PRESENTED IN A LIFETIME.
We have got the best and surest-selling article ever invented, that every housekeeper buys on sight. It is a small Furnace, weighing only six pounds, that can be used with or without a stove. It will fit in the holes of any sized stove or range, and it will do as much work with one quart of fuel—charcoal, chips, coke, corncobs, wood or soft coal—as can be done on any stove with one-half bushel. It will boil, broil, roast, toast, fry and stew. It is the best flat-iron heater in the world. Its economy in saving fuel is marvellous. You have no smoke, gas nor heat in the room. It sells the year round. Retail price only $2. Thousands are sold every week. Any man with a small capital can clear from $20 to $40 per day by owning the right of any good county, and a whole State is of incalculable worth to a man of enterprise. We would send a sample Furnace to an part of the United States on receipt of $2. Address, for circular,

—Pail creatures—Dairymaids.

—A man of many parts—A publisher.

—Who takes things as they come?—A thief.

—What is the form of an escaped parrot?—A Polygone.

—A love that is never reciprocated—neuralgic affection.

—Where would you look for a coarse race of men?—On a race-course.

—When does a cabbage beat a beet in growing? When it gets ahead.

—A class opposed to legislation on "abstract principles"—pick-pockets.

—No miller need ever be out of employment, for he can always grind his teeth.

—Who is the first carpenter mentioned in the Bible? Pharaoh, who made Joseph a ruler.

—A little boy out West was asked if he knew where liars went, and answered yes—they went to New York to write for the papers.

—"The greatest organ in the world," said a wicked old bachelor, "is the organ of speech in woman, because it is an organ without stops."

—The Bloomington Ledger, in mentioning the "largest hotel in the world" at Saratoga, says one of the Bloomington second class hotels can "furnish bugs enough to keep it in running order."

—"Professor," said a student in pursuit of knowledge concerning the habits of animals, "why does a cat, while eating, turn her head first one way and then another?" "For the reason," replied the professor, "that she cannot turn it both ways at once."

—Fanny Fern says:—"If one-half the girls knew the previous lives of the men they marry, the list of old maids would be wonderfully increased." Whereupon the Boston Post asks, "If the men knew what their future lives were to be, wouldn't it increase the list of old maids still further?"

—A town-clerk who had given a young man a marriage license, received from him the following note:—

"Sir: I will send you the license that you gave me to get married with and state that I was not married for this reason because the girl whose name is on the paper went back on me because she could get another feller his name is George Jones send them so you can give him license for her but be sure and get your fe for so doin. No more at present but believe me your most hart broken,

"JOSEPH MILLER."

YOUNG AMERICA.—A banker tells the following;—

A short time since a four-year-old boy, who was so small that he was obliged to stand several feet off from the teller's desk in our bank in order to be seen, presented a check for $60. The money was handed over, the boy being known, and our little friend departed. Some five minutes later he rushed into the bank, looking the picture of fright and almost breathless. As soon as he recovered sufficiently, he said:—

"M—m—mister did you send for me, sir?"

"No, certainly not. Why do you ask?"

"A m—man came up to me—me on the street and said you paid me too much money, and he wanted to take it from me."

"Did you give it to him!"

"No, sir. I asked him did he catch a weazel asleep? and I ran back to you."

VINEGAR BITTERS

VEGETABLE — FREE FROM ALCOHOL

PURELY — D. WALKER'S — CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

They act as gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing the merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

——Straps are to be used on pants again.

——Paper hangers and painters are busy.

——The Williamsport Circus is with us to-day.

——People can now write, as well as speak by the card.

——Thieves are tramping through the country. Be watchful.

——That same old tune comes from flies and mosquitoes.

——The prevailing fans are about the size of a tavern gong.

——The price of gingerbread has raised this morning. Cause—circus.

——How to find out the condition of your neighbors—study their clothes-lines.

——The show to-day is purely a circus. Where now is the excuse for the show-going christains?

——Learn to say no. No use of going off half mad about it; but speak it out firmly and respectfully.

——If your girl rejects you, don't despair, but coax her up with confectionery. They can't resist the sweets of life.

——For sale. Welcome Hay Rakes and one good Marsh Harvester will be sold cheep. SHORTLIDGE & CO.

——Two traveling salesmen were arrested on last Friday morning for playing ball in the streets. The burgess fined them $2 each.

——The corn is doing well. Some farmers have planted enough to yield five hundred bushels, and will hardly have that many grains.

——Augustus Miller, an employee in the shingle factory near the Thomas mill, had his thumb and fore finger sawed off on Monday morning last.

——Rev. McMurray, the late presiding elder, still hunts for trout in all their shady haunts in this section. We suppose he thinks he has a good precedent in the new Testament.

——Mr. J. Barrack, father-in-law of Mr. Jones Bell, of Philipsburg, was injured internally by falling over a block of ice on Friday, from the effects of which he died. He was 79 years of age.

——Dr. Hoops lectured, on the 30th of May, to a large audience in Philipsburg. He did well, and ought to come to Bellefonte, advertise, and make a traveling lecture-nuisance of himself generally.

——A pocket book containing valuable papers and some money, together with a bunch of keys and a pen knife, were found near Pleasant Gap on last Friday night. The owner can have them by calling at this office and proving his property.

——A dastardly attempt was made, on last Monday afternoon to fire the planing mill recently purchased by the Bellefonte Car Manufacturing Co. by setting fire to a pile of shavings just outside the building. Fortunately it was discovered in season to prevent any damage.

——The Commissioners of Centre and Clinton Counties held a joint meeting last week at Mrs. Kunes' for the purpose of letting the re-building of a bridge over Beech Creek. Aguew Moore was the successful bidder. Billy Furey says Mrs. Kunes set up an excellent dinner.

——The S. S. Convention is now in session in the Methodist church. At the opening session yesterday afternoon quite large delegations from different parts of the county were present, and many more have arrived since. The sessions are interesting and instructive. Full report next week.

——Since the Park has been abandoned near the spring, the Snow Shoe R. R. Co. has laid out an immense park on the Allegheny Mountains through which their "switch-backs" run, which has been a source of admiration to all tourists who pass over that world renowned railroad. They have already got it fenced in to keep the cattle from destroying the beautiful shrubbery. As two of the railroad officials are numbered among our borough fathers, would it not be well to have the town fenced in for the same purpose?

——For a week or two we have had no police. Their term of office expired and no re-appointments have been made as yet. That we have no police must be a very noticable fact. On last Friday a drunken man fell down on the pavement adjoining the Centre Co. Bank; there he fell asleep, and from nine in the morning until the afternoon was well gone, he was an object of annoyance and disgust. Nobody to remove him, he sweltered in his filth under a hot sun until a shower of rain brought him to his senses and he staggered away.

There should and must be some protection, and good order must be maintained either by a paid or volunteer police force, or we will again revert to the riotous days of '68 and '69, when strychnine corner was a terror to law-abiding citizens, when a single "coal-heaver" on the "war-path" would close every business place on the street, and fights and brawls were a frequent pastime. Happily, now, there is no better class of people in the town or county than the residents of the above named locality, and they should be protected in their peaceful homes and lawful avocations.

——Now the happy nights are here when gushing youths of both sexes do congregate in pairs, on porches and at gates, to make remarks about the weather, and learnedly discuss the size of passing feet or sniff the perfume of neighboring rose bushes. These are blissful nights, and chatting beaux and tittering misses do improve: them. They usually get out by the side door or the back way, so as not to disturb the ease of anxious mothers. Then the miss plants herself upon the door-step on a solitary chair. The young man who aspires to be her mate, props himself up against the house, or, if a tree be nigh, supports himself in a symmetrical manner against that tree, with it, making an interesting triangular base. Then he "chaws" or smokes, and smiles with interest upon his companion. The only objection there is to this method, is the danger of having his underpinning knocked out by a passer-by. Then he tries to say something smart, but he drops his cigar stump in his ruffled shirt-bosom and, startled at the accident, treads upon the shoes, (No. 8) of his beloved. She says "Oh My!" and simultaneously plants the unsoiled harmony of her beautiful hand in his ribs and off he walks for other conquests.

——We have received a copy of "The History of Lock Haven" by E. B. Haines. The historical part is meagre and loosely thrown together. The points of history may be true but if not it won't make much difference to the general reader. As a directory it is a decided failure, for we know, of our own personal knowledge, more of the people and places of business than is found in this book. If it contained the inner months and moon phases it might answer for a kind of an almanac, if a little allowance were made for the reading matter.

——Hon. John Irwin, Jr., and Major P. B. Wilson have returned from their trip to the Pacific coast. The former looks very much improved in health, and his many friends are rejoiced proportionately. Major Wilson delights his friends with Mormon tales that point a moral, tells of Indian encounters and openings for enterprising young men, with an enthusiasm that is surprising for one of his years and experiences.

——Bellefonte was matched against Milesburg on Saturday last, in a game of base ball. Owing to some disturbance the game was not finished. A resident of Milesburg who was present, informs us that the Milesburg players behaved in a most disgraceful and cowardly manner. This will never do, boys; base ball is a fine athletic game, intended to be played by gentlemen.

——A wild-goose alighted on the pond in the McCalmont ore mines, Marion township, one day last week. In attempting to escape, the ascent was so near perpendicular that it flew against the fence on the edge of the mines, when Robert S. McCalmont and John Butler captured the bird, who are now giving free exhibitions to curiosity seekers.

——Those candidates for office who have sent their announcements to the BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN unaccompanied by the usual fee of five dollars will know, by this notice, why their communications did not appear. All announcements for office must be accompanied by the usual fee in order to secure insertion.

——Local Option in some localities we wot of works peculiarly. It has raised the price of apples and crackers to ten cents apiece and the dealer makes so much profit on them that he generally throws a drink of whiskey into the bargain. Happy thought.

——A little Philipsburger named Yocum, one day last week, took two teaspoonfull of laudanum, administered by a little sister, in whose charge it was left. Medical aid was summoned and succeeded in saving the child's life.

——Mr. W. W. Curtin, son of the ex-Governor, has snatched a few days from business to visit his numerous friends and relatives hereabouts.

——Penns and Brush valley wheat fields look well.

——By St. Paul, the work goes bravely on at the car shops.

——Henry Kingsley killed a wild-cat near Copenhaven's distillery, last week.

——J. A. Bright will minister to the Lutherans of Aaronsburg until they get a regular pastor.

——Our late chief of Police, Runkle, was the terror of evil doers and a very efficient officer.

——A Trial of Mowing machines will take place at the Old Fort on the 24th of this month.

——Our fire companies have been invited to attend the 4th-of-July festivities at Hollidaysburg.

——The way to encourage crime and debauchery is to encourage young brats to jaw their elders.

——Bellefonte hotel milk being analyzed consists of water to the proportion of seventy-five per cent.

——Bremerd, the rare and racy has left David Over in Hollidaysburg and gone where the woodbine twineth.

——There is a pretty little girl in this town who wants to be adopted by a single man. She is only eighteen.

——Judge Dopp denies Ex-Judge Allison's statement that crops look well in Bald Eagle Valley, great men cannot always agree.

——Rebersburgers will have a picnic next Saturday. Daniel Boone's original brass band gives the invitation: "come one come all."

——There cannot be a more pleasant excursion at this season, than a trip to Snow Shoe on the top of the mountains. The scenery is grand.

——The examinations in the Bellefonte academy are now in operation. Commencement exercises will take place on Thuesday evening June 19.

——A little more "grit" and less "flattering unction" would rid our streets of loafers, our saloons of bloats and keep many a lad from crime and shame.

——Every exchange almost brings an account of coal oil explosions. Who ever heard of any oil exploding that was bought at the large Tinware store of Messrs Wetzler and Twitmire.

——One of Frank Burd's horses was apparently as well as ever when Frank left Aaronsburg last Friday morning, but somewhere in the vicinity of Madisonburg he commenced rearing and plunging and in a short time dropped dead.

——Edwin Tyson, the man who knows how to conduct a meat-market, has gone West to buy Cattle. Discouraged husbands and boarding house patrons may now take courage, as Mr. Tyson will soon supply the public with the best of all kinds of meat.

——A young man not far from here, wrote a message on the back of a postal card, put the card in an envelop, clapped on a three cent stamp, dropped it into the post office and thinks they are very handy things. He can get the idea from the localist of the Watchman.

——The localist of the Watchman is not much on scriptural proverbs. After sputtering through a lot of "Coolie" hash which is about as intelligible as that much Chinese, he clinches the historic pig-tail and says it is "robbing Paul to enrich Peter." Just so, he always had the faculty working up an anti-climax ascendingly.

——On Ascension Day, Clement Edwards, of Aaronsburg, while gunning, carelessly carried his gun muzzle forward on his shoulder with his fingers over the muzzle, when the gun was discharged by the lock catching in the bushes. The double wooden plug in the two barrels of the gun somewhat separated his fingers and prevented his hand from being torn to pieces. His hand was pretty badly lacerated but received no permanent injury.

——Another runaway occurred on Monday last. Wm. P. Humes and S. Durbin Gray, Esq., were driving from Milesburg; at a point opposite Cowdrick's brick yard the horse took fright, and the first thing they knew Mr. Gray was gathering himself up from the roadside to find that he was not much hurt, but that Mr. Humes was lying a few rods ahead of him in an insensible condition, and that the horse was just turning a curve in the road half a mile beyond. By the presence of mind of Mr. Gray, Mr. Humes was kindly cared for, soon restored to consciousness and conveyed to his home. The latter was badly bruised, but is recovering rapidly and will be about in a few days. The buggy was sadly out of repair when the horse was caught at the residence of Mr. Wm. H. Humes.

——The Washington Literary Society of the Agricultural College, gave their Annual entertainment on last Friday evening. The elegant hall of the society was filled to repletion by invited guests. The exercises were opened with a song from the glee club and prayer by President Calder. Miss Kate Devling, daughter of Jos. Devling, Esq., of this place, sang a solo entitled "Beautiful song from the Sea." The salutatory oration was delivered in fine style by Capt. C. G. Campbell, of Johnstown, Pa.; an essay on "Energy" was read by Miss Maud M. Patterson, of Yellow Springs, Pa. This essay, and the prominent part taken by Miss P. in the exercises of the evening, proved her to be a lady of rare endowments and considerable culture. Our young friend, Jas. F. Sloan, of Lock Haven, delivered an oration on "The Discovery of America." In this production the subject-matter was carefully and methodically digested and arranged, and was delivered in a cool, graceful manner, drawing forth approval from all. Ellis L. Orvis, son of our townsman, Hon. John H. Orvis, now appeared and recited "The curse of Regulus." It was decidedly the best recitation of the evening. J. A. Ellis gave the valedictory oration, and his efforts were rewarded with a shower of bouquets. All the performance of the evening evinced a high grade of culture. Every effort was pleasing, and showed the careful discipline and thorough training of professors and students.

——Enterprise and ingenuity are essencial elements in a Jerseyman. We glean this fact from careful observation of, and association with these foreigners, and in proof would call attention to the thrifty, healthy and charming appearance of the Bush House since it came into possession of Messrs. Wilkinson & Grise. We have often spoken in detail of the internal arrangement and management of this hotel, of the only curiosity that Barnum never exhibited—a polite clerk; but the latest attraction is the large grassy yard in rear of the hotel, laid out in pleasant walks, flower beds and croquet grounds, with an elegant fountain playing in the midst. Beyond the grounds, extending along, and reaching over a portion of the swift current of Spring Creek, and under the deep shade of a row of large, graceful willow trees, is a mammoth summer house large enough for two hundred people. The rushing of the waters below, and the dense foilage of the willows above, make this place the coolest and most delightful retreat imaginable. We can't imagine a more pleasant place to spend the summer holidays than at the Bush House.

MURDER IN WILLIAMSPORT.—On Monday 2d inst. 6½ o'clock, P. M., at the Beaver Mill, on the river, foot of Hepburn street, Henry Moon, a youth, killed a man named Isaac B. Reigle, both mill hands. During the day an altercation occurred between them, in which Moon was roughly handled, and he determined to retaliate. When the mill shut down in the evening, Moon approached Reigle from behind, as the latter was leaving the place, and struck him a blow on the head with a piece of edging, about five feet in length, knocking him prostrate. Moon, upon striking the blow, exclaimed, "How's that?" and, after gazing a few seconds upon the wounded man, walked away, at the instance of his brother-in-law, Peter Smith. The body of Reigle was carried to his home and Dr. Detwiler summoned, but when he arrived the unfortunate man was unconscious, and was vomiting, his pulse being quite feeble, his skin cold and clammy. The Doctor applied counter-irritants and stimulants, but all was of no avail; for when he returned at 9 o'clock, the man was dead. Death, the Doctor says, was caused by the shock. Moon has since been captured.

For the REPUBLICAN.

MR. EDITOR:—Dear Sir:—We noticed, with much surprise, in last week's REPUBLICAN, an accusation of falsehood in regard to the trial of sewing machines at Mr. Venada's, purporting to emanate from the gentleman himself.—That a falsehood has been told, there is not the slightest doubt. Who has told it, the readers of the REPUBLICAN can judge for themselves.

Our statement that the Grover & Baker was purchased before trial, is based entirely upon statements made by the Grover & Baker agent himself. He stated to Mr. L. W. Miller, the Weed ag't, on the Saturday before the trial, that it would be useless for him to go down, as his machine (the Grover & Baker), was sold. He stated to Mr. C. H. Moore, previous to that, that there could be no contest, as his machine was already sold. He stated to us at our office, that Mr. Venada had called at his office and told him that he would keep his machine.—He also admitted to us that he had agreed to take a load of hay next fall, on the machine, and showed an entry in his note book of some butter received at Mr. Venada's.

In regard to our statement that the Howe would have been his choice had our agents agreed to take farm produce, our informants are our agents. We have always found them thoroughly reliable in every respect, and shall decline to believe them guilty of falsehood, as Mr. Venada wished the Howe brought to his house on the 5th day of May, but purchased the Grover & Baker previous to that. It is no wonder that he attempted to frame an apology for treating our agents so meanly. It is natural, also, that, having purchased the Grover & Baker, he should make the best of his bargain. We have repeatedly offered $500 for a machine EQUAL to the Elias Howe. We repeat the offer now. If Mr. Venada can produce it, the money shall be his. The judges to be an impartial committee of three. We would also advise him before he again makes a public accusation of falsehood, to ascertain how much of the truth the other party actually knows.

In regard to the bribe, we know nothing whatever about it. We are not obliged to resort to bribery to sell the Howe machine. If our agents choose to make young ladies presents of new dresses, we do not consider it any of our business.

QUERRY.—In composing the elaborate article published in last week's REPUBLICAN, was Mr. Venada actuated solely by disinterested affection for the Grower & Baker machine?

Respectfully,
PALMER & WOOSTER.

EUROPEAN CORRESPONDENCE.

OUR OLD HOMES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE REPUBLICAN:

—Sir:—England, always and everywhere, rich in landscape and scenery, is perhaps never more beautiful and inviting than to the tired ocean-tossed traveler, who, for ten days, has hoped for rest, and peered across old ocean's melancholy waste for land. The familiar song of "a life on the ocean wave" is all very well for enjoyment at an evening sociable, and "a wet sheet and a flowing sea" will do to music any calm summer evening in the quiet of your home, but if the author of this kind of stuff should happen to be found on board of a Cunard steamship one-half hour after the appointed time at which "Merrie England" should greet your eyes, there would soon be one less ocean affecting poet in the world. Neither romance nor poetry can make aught of the voyage across the Atlantic save that it is nasty, or to use the Englishman's word, beastly.

But from out this valley of humiliation comes great joy in beholding the highly cultivated farm, the well trimmed hedge, the smooth roads, with, on every hand, "the lowing herd winding slowly o'er the lea."

The age of iron and of stone is apparent at every view—the bridge, the viaduct, the gate, the fence, with the dwelling and the barn, all attest that the day of wood for these purposes has long since passed from England. Substantial and durable is stamped upon every public work, and I am not quite sure but that the whole English character presents this phase, view it in what aspect you will, whether, too, one considers the work of brain or hand—government, religious worship, or some public improvement.

Can you understand a person saying that he likes England, but not the English people? This, with most Americans, or at least those who do not rush through to enjoy unsteady la belle France, is literally true. For when one can dismiss all jealousy, and forget all England's perfidy, there remains Westminster Abbey, the gorgeous palaces, the closed capped towers, whose history was made by those from whom we sprung. The same language and the same religion still exists to teach that we are one people; but how widely we stand apart when considering our forms of government. Here the theory is that there should be an exclusive class to govern, with us, that by birth and before the law, all are equal. The one theory to enoble the few and degrade the many, the other to permit every man, through his own part to enoble himself.

An Englishman simply content in present greatness has great reason to be proud, if, however, he will but turn his eyes inward and note that from his growth of pride there has sprung selfishness and perfidy, he might find food for reflection and morals.

Crowded upon an island which, from John O'Groats, in Scotland, to Lands End in England, will not measure twice the length, and in no average, the width of Pennsylvania, there are thirty millions of people. Is it, therefore, any wonder that in their struggles for existence, for air to breathe, water to drink, and wherewithal to be clothed, the contest is fearful, the scars and wounds of the conflict more lasting than with us? or that these have left their impress upon the character as I paint it. The individual Englishman, when you once break through his snobbish stiffness, is sociable, not a bad sort of fellow, and that class of society to which a well-bred American comes well introduced, will, now-a-days, receive him with a courtesy which shows former prejudices to be passing away and gives evidence that at last they begin to perceive that there are some Americans who were not born in the forest or nursed in a wigwam.—

To understand why the English people are so uninformed about the people of the United States, it is necessary to remember that here the lines of caste in society, forbid information, running to and fro as with us. The commercial classes know most about us, but they, at the lowest round of the ladder, can have no intercourse with the long line of classes above them. Some few of the leading politicians know, by vocation of their office, much of us, but this information is a sealed book unto all others; as a rule it may be accepted that the people of Great Britain have just about as reliable information of the people of the United States, and take about the same interest in them as the people of the United States do in those of South America.

An Englishman, visiting Boston, was taken to see the Bunker Hill monument, and when he had come down from its top, a point at its base was pointed out as the place where Warren FELL. Looking up the great height of the column, the Englishman remarked: "It must have killed him."

In the political world England is at present tranquil; but her press fails not to point daily to the disturbances in Spain, France, on the borders of Russia, and elsewhere, and to round it all with a tale of vice, dishonesty and corruption in the United States, in the several of which all classes are lulled to contentment.

In the world social there is much astir, for it is "the season" in London. My Lord and the country Squire, with their families, must come to town once a year, and the pace at which society runs during this season of sixty days is marvellous. Perhaps I may not better tell of this than through an extract from Punch, the comic jester:

"GENTLE TEMPTATION.—'Not come while we are so gay? O! but there's nothing going on just now I assure you! To-morrow, there will only be the Park in the morning, and then some people come to luncheon, and afterwards mamma wants me to go and pay visits with her and do some shopping, and you won't mind Lady Muff to five o'clock tea, and we may possibly go to the Flower Show for an hour or two. There will be only ten at dinner, and we shan't leave for aunty's dance until long after your bedtime, you know, Grandma, dear!'"

Had Punch added, Flower Shows, the Opera and Theatre, with which to alternate, the description is complete.

But in this wonderful city which, as it has been said in society parlance, "when everybody is out of town," contains more inhabitants than any city in the world. What is there not to do and see? But come not without your purse, else you will see little and return a disappointed.

Philadelphia Trade Markets.

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.

The stock of good cotton here is small, and this description is held firmly, but common grade are dull. Sales of Middling Upland 19¼ cents, and New Orleans 20¼ cents.

In Cloverseed nothing is doing. Timothy cannot be quoted over $5.75. The market is bare of flaxseed, and is wanted at $2.25 per bushel.

There is no change in Quercitron Bark, and we continue to quote No. 1 at $32.50 per ton.

The flour market continues inactive, the demand being confined to the wants of the local consumers in yesterday's figures. Sales of 80 barrels, including Superfine at $4.75@5.20; Extras at $6@6.75; Spring Wheat Extra Family at $7.50@8.75—the latter for fancy Minnesotas; $8@9.50 for Pennsylvania and the Western Wheat, and $9.75@11.50 for fancy. Nothing doing in Rye Flour or Corn Meal.

The Wheat market is dull, and only a few small lots sold at $1.80@2.06 for Western, 89 for Amber and $2.08@2.15 for White. Rye is held at 91@92c. Corn is dull, with sales of 800 bushels Yellow at 64@65c. Oats are in limited request at 48@50c. for White and 47c. for Mixed.

Whisky is firm, and 80 barrels Western iron bound sold at 90c.

The receipts of flour and grain at this port to-day are as follows: Flour, 2,100 barrels; Wheat, 16,000 bushels; 16,800 bushels; Oats, 7,700 bushels; Rye 80 bushels; Barley none.
